so low he erected a distillery, and fed at one time one hundred and fifty head of cattle. The high prices were shipped by the lake to market. Although the distillery was profitable in a monetary sense, his strong temperance views caused him to abandon that business. Owing to the large production of live stock in that new country prices became very low, and there opened to his mind the possibilities of profitably marketing the excess of cattle to New York City, by driving them in droves of two hundred or more. This venture warranted a continuance of the business until 1855, when the completion of the new L. S. & M. S. R. R. rendered the driving unprofitable, though he continued as a dealer several years, shipping by the railway. Previous to the organization of the Free Soil party, he was a Democrat. He believed in freedom in its broadest sense, and he followed that movement thence into the Republican party, and was an active worker, and during the dark days from the opening to the close of the Civil War, he was always earnest in sustaining the government by acts and deeds. He was contemporaneous with Joshua R. Giddings and Benjamin F. Wade, citizens of an adjoining town, and with them was active in trying to break the shackles from the bondmen of the south. His home was on the line of one of the branches of the “Underground railroad.” He took an active part in the establishing of Kingsville Academy, in 1836 and 1837, which was the leading educational institution in northeastern Ohio, until the opening of the Civil War. He was always active in educational matters, and urged young people to take advantage of the opportunities he did not have in his day. In 1837 he bought three hundred and forty acres of land in the adjoining town of Sheffield, and moved there in 1838. In 1839 he erected a brick house on the farm. The water table, window caps and sills, together with the steps, were cut by him from stone purchased in the adjoining state of Pennsylvania. The property passed into other hands in 1880, but the house was so well constructed that though sixty-two years have passed, the foundations and walls remain perfect. His was an active, moral, and temperate life. He was a great lover of children and young people, and was never happier than when they crowded his hospitable home, and where they knew that "Uncle Porter" and "Aunt Phoebe" had a warm welcome for them.

CHILDREN.

201. i. Harvey Gridley, b. in Waterville, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1834; d. Denver, Col., Dec. 13, 1878.

202. ii. Cornelius, b. 1852; d. 1859.

203. iii. Edward Porter, b. 1851; d. May 1866 in Chicago.
1879. George Washington Eastman1 (Harvey6, Hezekiah5, Joseph4, Peter3, Joseph2, Roger1), born in Marshall, Oneida county, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1815, on the farm purchased by Joseph Eastman1 in 1797; died in Rochester, N. Y., April 27, 1862; buried in the cemetery at Waterville, N. Y., a part of which village is in the township in which he was born. He married Maria Kilbourn, Sept. 25, 1844. After leaving the district school, which was located near the family homestead, Mr. Eastman attended for a short time Hamilton Academy, Madison county, and Amenia Seminary, Duchess county. As a boy and young man he showed great aptitude in the use of the pen, and when quite young began giving instructions in the art of penmanship, of which he became one of the most proficient and expert masters of the age in which he lived. His success as a teacher of penmanship in the nearby towns, as well as at the Seminary at Amenia, opened to him the possibilities of a much greater success and a wider field, by the establishing of a permanent institution in which should be taught, not only the art of penmanship, but that of bookkeeping and the science of accounts. His ambition in that direction culminated in the opening of the Rochester Mercantile College in 1842, the first of its kind established in this country. Notwithstanding the field in which he entered was a new one, the venture proved a success, and fully justified the movement in that direction. In 1847 he published a work on single and double entry bookkeeping which was the standard work on the science of accounts for many years, and was introduced into the school as a text-book. Being a man of quick perceptions, he readily saw the need of something more tangible than text-books and manuscripts in preparing young men to enter the counting room as thorough and safe accountants. While working to meet these exigencies he conceived the idea of introducing actual transactions, and putting into daily practice that which had heretofore been only theoretical. Thus in 1858 there was introduced into the Rochester Mercantile College the various departments of banking, forwarding and commission, insurance, brokerage, and jobbing and wholesale houses, thus giving the student, in a few months, practical advantages that in ordinary routine would require years to accomplish. To him belongs the honor of founding the school which is the prototype of similar schools of the present day. He had a great love for horticulture and floriculture, and his own garden was always filled with the choicest fruits and rarest flowers. He started and conducted a large nursery, and was really one of the pioneer nurserymen of central New York. Mr. Eastman was a true lover of nature, and no sportsman enjoyed a holiday more, with dog and gun, or fly rod and basket, than did the subject of this sketch, and none were more successful in returning home with well filled game bag or fish basket.

Marla Kilbourn, wife of George Washington Eastman, was born in Marshall, Oneida county, N. Y., Aug. 22, 1821, on the farm owned by her parents, Thomas and Mary Kilbourn. Her education was obtained at Vernon Academy, Oneida county, and later at Kellogg's Seminary, at Clinton, Oneida county, N. Y. The twenty-fifth of September, 1844, she married George Washington Eastman, and removed with him to Rochester, N. Y., where they lived for four years. They then removed to Waterville, residing there until 1861, when they returned to Rochester, where Mrs. Eastman still resides. They had three children. Mrs. Eastman, now in her eighty-first year, lives at the residence of her son, George Eastman, where she presides with grace and dignity, and all the vigor of a younger woman. Keen and vigorous of mind, she takes a lively interest in all the leading questions of the day. She has traveled extensively, and every year she adds to her knowledge of the world in this way. She takes a deep interest in the educational and moral improvement of her home city, and there is hardly an institution of learning or charity in Rochester that has not felt the inspiration of her interest and the help of her generosity. Mrs. Eastman is a communicant of St. Paul's Church, of Rochester, and shows an active interest in all its work. It is said that she has always taken a lively interest in the varied business activities of her son, and that much of his success is due to her counsel and encouragement. Perhaps her most remarkable trait is the attraction she has for younger people. Her house is eagerly sought by young men and women, who find her friendship and companionship a constant help and benefit.

CHILDREN.

i. Ellen Maria, b. in Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 4, 1840; d. in Cleveland, Ohio, June 25, 1884; m. George W. Andrus, of Cleveland, Ohio. Children: (a) Ellen Amanda Andrus, b. Sept. 1, 1871; m. George Dryden, of Chicago, Ill.; (b) Royal Vilas Andrus, b. March 20, 1873.

ii. Emma Kate, b. in Waterville, N. Y., Aug. 6, 1850; d. in Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 3, 1870.

iii. George, b. in Waterville, N. Y., July 12, 1854. In 1881 he moved, with his parents, to Rochester, N. Y., where he has since resided. He attended the public and private schools of Rochester until the age of fourteen, when he entered as office boy the insurance office of Cornelius Waydell. The following year, 1869, he transferred into the office of Buell & Brewster, also insurance agents, and remained there until the year 1874, when he obtained a clerkship in the Rochester Savings Bank. He remained in the bank until September, 1881, when he resigned to enable him to give his whole attention to the manufacture of photographic dry plates. For the previous two years, during his spare time while in the employ of the bank, he had been experimenting in photography, and in the spring of 1880 he had perfected a process for manufacturing sensitive gelatine dry plates. He was one of the pioneers in the business. The first factory he fitted up occupied one floor in a small building on State street, where he conducted the business under the name of “The Eastman Dry Plate Eastman Family of America.

Company.” The business since has expanded from the manufacture of dry plates only, into a large variety of photographic specialties, including cameras, many kinds of sensitive papers, and rollable transparent films. At the present time the allied Kodak companies employ capital aggregating many millions of dollars, and give direct employment to over thirty-five hundred people, and have factories or branches in all of the principal countries of the world. Mr. Eastman is president of the Eastman Kodak Company, and of the General Aristo Company, managing director of Kodak, Limited, and a director in Eastman Kodak Societe Anonyme Francaise, and Eastman Kodak Gesellschaft. His principal work in photography has been in the direction of simplifying and cheapening its processes, so as to permit of the practice and use of the art by the masses. He invented the first plate coating machine, patented 1880; the first commercially successful rollable film, patented 1884; the original film camera, patented 1888, first made famous by the phrase (originated by Mr. Eastman), “You press the button, we do the rest,” which, in connection with his invention of the film, reduced photography to the “you press the button” stage, thereby enabling hundreds of thousands to take pictures who could not devote time to learning the technical side of the art. Cameras of various forms made by his companies have obtained a world-wide reputation under the name of Kodak, invented by him. Later, Mr. Eastman invented the first machine for making rollable transparent film, patented 1890. Nearly all of the film used up to the present time has been made upon this machine. In 1899 the French government conferred upon him the decoration of Chevalier of the Legion of Honour. Mr. Eastman is a member of the board of trustees of the Rochester Trust and Safe Deposit Company, the Security Trust Company, the Rochester Savings Bank, a director of the Alliance Bank, a member of the board of managers of the Homoeopathic Hospital, the Rochester Orphan Asylum, and the Rochester Athenaeum and Mechanics Institute; a member of the Genesee Valley and Country Clubs, all of Rochester, and of the National Arts and Strollers Clubs, of New York.

She was left without a mother when less than two years old, but was cared for by a stepmother. When about twelve or thirteen years of age, she spent a couple of winters in Ridgefield, Conn., with her maternal grandmother, and there attended the public schools where she met Napoleon B. Turner, her senior by one year. Though they were but mere children they fell in love at first sight. They were married at her father's residence in New Fairfield, in March, 1834, when she was but sixteen years old and he only seventeen. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Iseman Bangs, who said that they were the youngest as well as the handsomest couple he ever married.
Napoleon B. Turner was born in Kent, N. Y., June 1, 1816, but lived in Ridgefield all his life. Phebe Jane died of consumption on Sunday, Feb. 26, 1843, aged twenty-five years and eight months. Her funeral occurred at the Methodist church in New Fairfield, and she was buried there in the Methodist burying-ground by the side of her mother. Her husband never re-married, and died eleven years later while traveling in the South, at Glasgow, Ky., Sept. 27, 1854. He was brought to Danbury, Conn., and buried, and though his wife's name is graven on his stone, she has never been removed from her original resting place.

ROBERT FORSYTHE EASTMAN, of CORINTH, VT. 831

1421. Robert Forsythe Eastman7 (Orramus W. B.6, Edmund5, Edmund4, Edmund, Benjamin3, Roger2), born in Corinth, Vt., Oct. 22, 1811; married Mary Hatch. In 1836 he removed to Mt. Clemens, Mich., and a few months later his wife and infant daughter died, when on Oct. 8, 1840, he married 2d, Miss Harriet M. Rutter, of Philadelphia, Pa. He died at Mt. Clemens, Aug. 12, 1849. His widow, who resides there, says she is quite sure he was born in 1814, and that he was married before reaching his twentieth year. His brother Ezra, who is living in Corinth, Vt., sends the compiler a copy from his father's Bible which gives the date of his birth first given. Soon after settling in Mt. Clemens he opened a store of general merchandise, doing a prosperous business, and continuing in it up to the date of his death. Besides his mercantile business he owned a sawmill, owned and had carried on for him a foundry and ashery. He was an active member and generous supporter of the Presbyterian church in Mt. Clemens. In politics a whig. He was much respected in his business and social life.

the news of President Lincoln's being shot rang over the wires in 1865. On Feb. 21, 1871, he came to Rondout, Ulster Co., N. Y., since incorporated into the city of Kingston, where he has since resided. The next day he accepted a position as clerk in a bookstore and telegraph operator, his employer being superintendent of telegraph of the line. His employer was also postmaster of the then Rondout postoffice, and he was at once sworn in as clerk in the postoffice, every day dividing his time between the two places. He continued doing so until May 9, 1877, when he resigned from the bookstore and became deputy postmaster under a new postmaster. This position he retained until Dec. 1, 1880, when he resigned and became bookkeeper in the general office of the Wallkill Valley Railroad Company. He served as such until Feb. 14, 1882, when he entered the employ of Samuel D. Coykendall, the railroad and steamboat magnate, where he has been ever since that time. He at once became auditor and general bookkeeper of the Stony Clove & Catskill Mountain Railroad Company, and served as such until July 1, 1893, when the company was sold to another corporation. At the same time, Feb. 14, 1882, he became bookkeeper of the Kingston City Railroad Company, and on Oct. 1, 1884, became auditor, which position he held until Jan. 16, 1901, when Mr. Coykendall, who owned all of the stock, sold it to another corporation, and the management was changed. On April 10, 1895, he became secretary and treasurer of the Rhinebeck & Kingston Ferry Company, and is still serving as such. On Jan. 19, 1901, he became head bookkeeper of the Cornell Steamboat Company (the largest towing corporation in the world), and of the New York & Rosendale Cement Company. He is a member of the "National Association of Accountants and Bookkeepers." On Sept. 23, 1874, he married Miss Kate Preston, who was born at Rondout, Ulster county, N. Y., Feb. 13, 1854, and their married life has been unusually happy. On Sept. 1, 1884, he was appointed treasurer of the Board of Education of Ulster Academy, and has been reappointed every year since. Oscar united with the Baptist Church at Ontario, N. Y., in 1866, and transferred to Rondout, when he moved there. He has since served the church as clerk for twenty-one years, trustee and treasurer for fifteen years, member of the prudential committee for nineteen years, and early in 1901 was elected deacon. On Dec. 15, 1894, he became a life member of the Eastman Family Association of the United States. He is a member of the various Masonic bodies in the American Rite; is a past master, past district deputy grand master, grand representative, and assistant grand lecturer in Symbolic Masonry; past high priest, past grand master of First Veil, and assistant grand lecturer in Capitular Masonry; and a past commander in the Commandery of Knights Templar. He is a thirty-second degree Mason in the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, northern jurisdiction, a noble of the Mystic Shrine, and a member of the Masonic Veterans’ Association, the Masonic Historical Society of the State of New York, the Fraternal Union of Anointed High Priests of the State of New York, the New York Society of the Order of Founders and Patriots of America. He is also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, is patron of his local chapter, and assistant grand lecturer under the grand chapter. On Aug. 30, 1867, he became a member of the Independent Order of Good Templars, and has kept his membership intact to the present time, having received and used every quarterly password from the first. Has served in various offices, and is a past chief Templar, past lodge deputy, past county chief Templar, past county deputy, past grand assistant secretary of the Grand Lodge, and an honorary member of the International Supreme Lodge. When the supreme lodge established the three years’ course of reading, he enrolled as a member and graduated with the first or pioneer class, thereby receiving the degree of Master of Royal Templars.

Richardson, chief justice of New Hampshire. He married 2d, Sept. 29, 1859, Pamela Mellen Prentice born in Keene, N. H., Oct. 27, 1821, daughter of Hon. John Prentice, for many years editor of the Keene Sentinel. Mr. French was educated at Pinkerton Academy, at Derry, Pembroke, N. H., and Hingham, Mass., where he went to study French. He studied law in his father’s office, and at the Law School in Cambridge, Mass., and was admitted to the bar, Aug. 14, 1835. He practiced law with his father as long as he lived, when he went to Portsmouth for one year, then removed to Exeter, and held the office of solicitor ten years from 1838, and that of bank commissioner four years from 1848. He practiced law there until appointed a justice of the court of common pleas, Aug. 15, 1854, which office he held till Aug. 1, 1859. He opened an office in Boston in Sept., 1859, and removed his family to Cambridge in 1860; was appointed assistant district attorney for Suffolk county, Nov. 19, 1862, and held the office (at the same time practicing law) until June, 1865, when he was elected the first president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He removed to Amherst, where the college was established Sept., 1865, having resigned his office in Boston. Being unable to organize the college according to his ideas of what such an institution should be, he resigned his position there Oct. 17, 1866, and removed to Boston, where he renewed his profession in the spring of 1867. He purchased a farm in Concord, Mass., on which he resided. In 1852 Dartmouth conferred upon him the honorary degree of M. A. He was elected

1464. Josiah Caleb Eastman7 (Joseph6, Timothy5, Joseph4, Joseph3, Samuel2, Roger1), born in Loudon, N. H., April 22, 1811; died in Hampstead, N. H., Nov. 27, 1867; married 1st, Ann A. Wilson, a daughter of Capt. Leonard Wilson, a pensioner of the war of 1812; she died Feb. 17, 1850. He married 2d, Feb. 5, 1860, Mary Helen Harris, daughter of Dr. Jerome and Mary (Tewksbury) Harris, of Amesbury, Mass.; she died May 23, 1891, aged 55 years. Dr. Eastman was educated at Kingston, Atkinson and Saco, Me., academies; taught district schools for eight years, and graduated from Dartmouth in the class of 1837. He studied

History and Genealogy of the Eastman Family of America, compiled by G. S. Rix, 1901 medicine and entered into practice at Newmarket, N. H., and about 1839 he located at Hampstead, N. H., where, except during his military life, he was in active practice. He had been a member of the New Hampshire Medical Society over fifty years, and was its president in 1860. He was a member of the Rockingham Medical Society, and was twice its president. He was also an honored member of the American Medical Association, whose meetings he frequently attended as a delegate from New Hampshire, and was one of the three delegates from New Hampshire to the great International Medical Congress, held at Philadelphia in 1876. His favorite branches of practice were surgery and obstetrics, and he had attended at the births of four thousand five hundred children who lived, and of whom he kept a record. He was appointed by Governor Berry surgeon of the Fourth New Hampshire Volunteers, with rank of major, and accompanied the regiment to Washington, Annapolis, Port Royal, Hilton Head, St. Augustine, and Jacksonville, Fla., doing laborious service for two years, when, on account of illness in his family, he resigned and returned to Hampstead. Shortly afterwards he declined the colonelcy of a new regiment which was offered him, although it would have been in accord with his tastes. When a mere lad he had been appointed a cadet at West Point, but he declined the appointment at the urgent request of his widowed mother. Subsequently, he held every rank in the New Hampshire militia from private to colonel. In politics Dr. Eastman was a stanch Democrat. In 1845 he was county treasurer, and was renominated in 1847, but declined the honor. The strength of his political principles is illustrated by the fact that when he was in the senate the "Knownothings" urged him to accept the nomination for governor, but he indignantly refused the proffered bribe, although he might have been easily elected. For years he was one of the standard bearers of the party, and was its candidate for councillor at two elections. He was a delegate to the national convention which nominated McClellan, as was also Horatio Seymour. Dr. Eastman was in practice within about a year of his death, and was very active for a man of his years. He was confined to his bed but five days.

She died at the home of her son, Ebenezer F., in Weston, Vt., on Christmas day, 1886. Mr. Eastman’s early life was of good repute, but it gave no indication of the nature of his life work. He had no special educational advantages, attending only the common schools of his native city. His religious life began when he was twenty-three years of age, at which time he was converted and united with the Baptist church in Georgetown, Mass. He received his license from the church in Georgetown, Mass., Aug. 2, 1850. Three years later he was ordained pastor of the Baptist church in Danbury, N. H., Sept. 28, 1853. Two thirds of his ministry was spent in New Hampshire, where he held six pastorates, two in Danbury, one in Newton, Dunbarton, Woodstock, and Sutton, respectively. Between 1869 and 1873, while city missionary in Concord, N. H., he held the first open air service in that city, preached the first sermon ever delivered before the prisoners in the Merrimack county jail, and was afterwards made chaplain of the New Hampshire state prison. One season he held services at the Twin Mountain House, White Mountains, N. H. He removed to Andover, Vt., where he held pastorate till his death. Previous to this last, he held pastorate over the church in Weston, Vt., for five years.

C., Dec. 24, 1869, Sarah Norton Russell, born in East Hampton, Conn., July 6, 1847, daughter of Rev. William and Sarah Elizabeth (Brown) Russell. In May, 1861, he went to Island Falls, Me., where, in 1862, he enlisted in the Eighteenth Maine Infantry as private; was promoted to corporal, sergeant, and first sergeant. The regiment reached Washington the last of August, 1862, and was put in the defences of that city. In the fall the regiment was changed to the First Maine Heavy Artillery, and when the organization was completed he was commissioned second lieutenant, Company M, Feb., 1864. The regiment remained in the defences of Washington until May 15, 1864, when it left to join the Army of the Potomac at Spottsylvania, Va., where it arrived on the eighteenth, and the next day was in its first battle, at Spottsylvania, Va. The next battle was in front of Cold Harbor, Va., though the regiment was under fire at North Anna. On the eighteenth of June, in front of Petersburg, Va., the regiment lost over six hundred in killed and wounded, two hundred and ten of them killed and died of wounds. This regiment sustained the heaviest loss in killed of any organization during the whole war. Lieutenant Eastman was with his regiment in every battle in which it was engaged till he was wounded, June 18, 1864. On the twenty-seventh of Oct., 1864, he was discharged on account of wounds received in battle. In May, 1865, he was appointed clerk in the war department, in Washington, D. C., where he resided till 1875, when he removed to Falls Church, Va., where he now resides. For nine years he was a member and deacon of the First Congregational church in Washington, D. C., and is holding the same position in Falls Church. He is still in the war department.
ALBERT PRESCOTT EASTMAN, OF DERRY, N. H. 889

Mr. Eastman enlisted May 7, 1861, in Company H, First New York Volunteers, as private, Col. William H. Allen. He was then of Aurora, N. Y. The regiment was recruited and organized in New York city, to serve two years. It left the state May 29, 1861, under the command of Gen. B. F. Butler; arrived at Fortress Monroe, Va., May 31, 1861; served at that place to July 3; at Newport News, Va., to March, 1862; in first brigade, first division, Department of Virginia, to June 6, 1862; in third brigade, third division, third corps, Army of the Potomac, to July, 1862; in the second brigade, first division, third corps, Army of the Potomac, to Oct., 1862, and to May 25, 1863, at which date he was mustered out in the third brigade, same division and corps. He was in the battles of Big Bethel, Va., the first battle of the war, June 10, 1861; Hampton Roads, Va., March 8 and 9, 1862; in the campaign before Richmond, Va., from Seven Pines to Malvern Hill, Va., ending July 1, 1862; battle of Chantilly, Va., Sept. 1, 1862, when he was severely wounded by a bullet in the neck and shoulder; recovered and rejoined his regiment, and was in the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 11 to 15, 1862; in the battle of Chancellorsville, Va., May 1 to 5, his term of enlistment expiring during the battle. He was also in the second battle of Bull Run, Va., Aug. 29 and 30, 1862. He was color bearer some months; promoted to second lieutenant in July, 1862, and first lieutenant in Oct., 1862. After the war he studied law at Albany, N. Y., settled in Cedar Rapids, Ia., where he practiced his profession twenty years, when in 1885 he removed to St. Paul, Minn., and in 1896 removed to Lake Charles, La., where he is manager of the North American Land and Timber Company, a position for which his wide business experience in the Northwest had peculiarly fitted him. Besides being influential in affairs, Mr. Eastman is not less widely known and respected for his ability than for his personal qualities, in which charm of manner and high-mindedness are united with broad general culture. He is a member of the Presbyterian church, a Freemason, and in politics a stanch Republican.
