

what went in behind the scene down here. They had no idea how close they were to getting nothing. Forester knew everything we did and that's why they were so happy."

They'll send out a newsletter targeted to 3 counties--they get names from licenses and they pull zipcodes. They'd like to have a Sunday "thumb-sucker." They'll do one segment of their Q & A. "If we did a full state newsletter, that would be beating it to death."

Bob T says to someone on the telephone "I'm up to the Kazoo in clothespins today." And he was in at 7:00AM to contact radio stations, sending them his taped messages. By time I got there at 9:00, he had completed it. He was still talking to a few people.

Bill Cohen called the two radio stations that couldn't take tapes. Bob said he had to remind Bill of the key facts. He tends to turn off "All these guys have terminal turn off." I said, "If he cared enough to go to Deaver, he must remember it." Bob said he did, but "he has to be reminded constantly." He just has too many things on his mind.

Bob U went off to National Potato~~X~~ Council meeting on Monday night; Tom Daffron was concerned with getting some information into a Fortune magazine article; he was also trying to seel David Cullham of CBS news on story on a Maine guy who has a hydroelectric plant in his front yeard and has spent 1,000 hours filling out forms so far. (Charlie McArthur.)

I went back at 5:00 that evening. Nothing had happened. They were getting ready for Bill to take a weekend trip to Maine. He would mention the clothespins during his speech in Rumford. Also will talk in Farmington. That will be it.
